Technical analysis

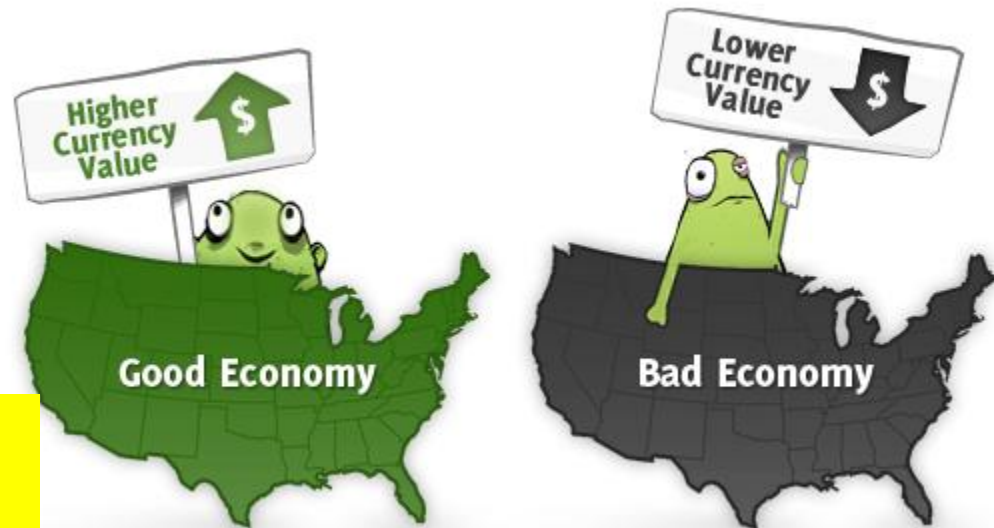

- Technical analysis is the framework in which traders study price movement.

Technical analysis looks at the price movement of a security and uses this data to predict its future price movements.

Fundamental analysis

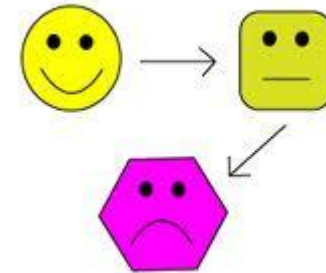

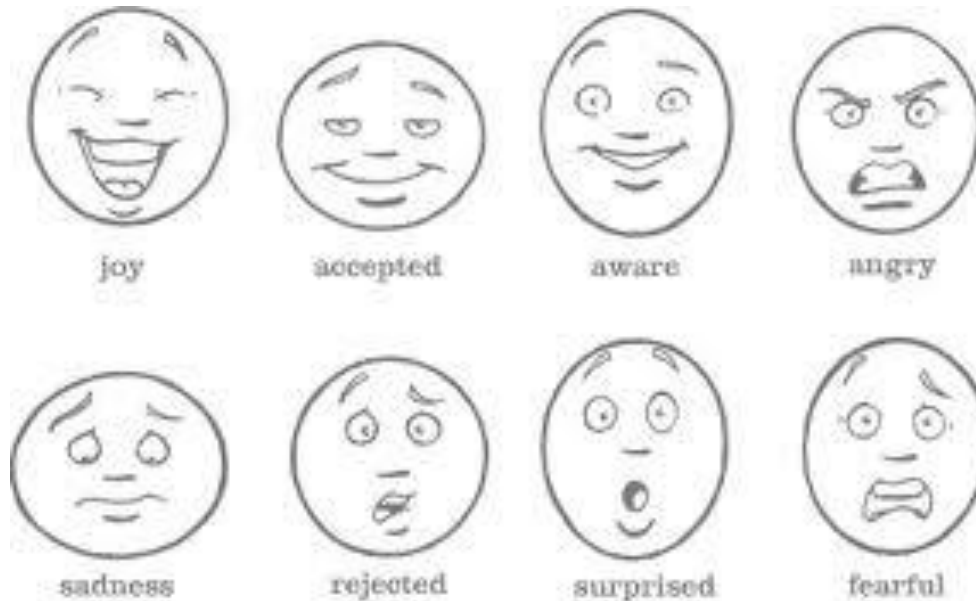

- Fundamental analysis is a way of looking at the market by analyzing economic, social, and political forces that affects the supply and demand of an asset

Fundamental analysis looks at economics factors.

Sentiment analysis

- The markets do not simply reflect all the information out there because traders will all just act the same way, it determine the market on current or future outlook

Sentiment analysis
looks at one's personal judgement or evaluation.
